Dear Parents and Carers,

This January, St. Mary's Infants were very excited about completing our RSPB Big School's Bird Watch. Though we couldn't all complete it together in school, we know that so many of you enjoyed accessing the RSPB resources that were sent home and have explored birdwatching either in your gardens or on walks with your families – thank you for being as enthusiastic about our local wildlife as we are!

You may recall that the RSPB had asked our school to be involved in their filming of the Big School's Bird Watch. Thankfully, we were still able to take part and have since been contacted by the RSPB to say that we should all keep our eyes peeled over the next two weeks because we are going to be featured on their social media!

Here are their handles if you have access to Twitter or Instagram:

- @RSPB_Learning on Twitter
- @rspb_learning_schools on Instagram

They also mentioned that if you have taken part in either the Big School's Bird Watch at home or are planning to take part in the Big Garden Bird Watch this weekend, they would love for you to share your photographs with them on social media too (if you would like to). Whether it's the bird feeders that you've prepared or the recording sheets that you've filled in, they are keen to see how people have stepped into the world of birdwatching and developed their interests in observing and protecting wildlife.

With kind regards,

Miss Farrant
(Eco-Warrior lead)
